Naic LGU supports Migrant Workers and families

The Local Government of Naic has taken another significant step in its welfare programs for overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) and their families with the signing of a Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) led by Mayor Rodolfo B. Magtibay and the officials of the Department of Human Services (DHS).

The MOA was signed last week at the Naic Municipal Office.

Commissioner Ralph "Winky" Dizon joined the event, underscoring the local government's commitment to building strong partnerships with national agencies.

The agreement aims to extend services and initiatives that directly benefit migrant workers, ensuring that their welfare is not lost in their absence from the country.

In his message, Mayor Magtibay emphasized that this collaboration with DHS is part of the government's broader vision to create a more inclusive and supportive environment for all residents, including the needs of migrant workers and their families.

“Our DHS is the mainstay of our social services, and it is our responsibility to ensure that with the support of DHS, we can provide the best while they are away from their families and homes,” Magtibay said.

The partnership with the DHS is expected to open more opportunities for social training, employment programs, and family support services. By joining forces with DHS, Naic is committed to ensuring that migrant workers and their families are not left behind and are able to thrive in their respective communities.

Innate dimensions and abilities of man

Last of two parts

EDUCATOR'S BOOTH

By Romeo E. Pua, Jr.

Last week, we looked at the innate dimension of man's life, namely his attitude, intellect, sense, personality, values, and skills. To date, we will now look at the various abilities of man.

According to Ziglar's Crucial Program (1990), there are six. The first one is the man's ability to learn.

People, he claims, are potential learners. A potential learner has a disposition that will be used in the most effective manner.

People learn in a variety of ways and they naturally learn with their qualifications either in their individual ability, background, and so on.

The second is the man's ability to think.

People think in a variety of ways and they naturally think with their qualifications either in their individual ability, background, and so on.
